MEMORANDUM DECISION RE
INFORMATION LEASING CLAIM

After reviewing the memoranda and accompanying documents and the oral argument, the Court finds and concludes that the only software for which there could be an administrative claim after rejection of the leases pertains to software not factory-installed on equipment that was also subject to the leases. The only exception to this limitation is if Information Leasing has evidence that the Debtors copied software off such leased equipment and was using it on other equipment that was not subject to the leases.
